

MECHANICS

Recognizing successful and validated practices demonstrated by public sector organizations.

BACKGROUND

The Government Best Practice Recognition (GBPR) is an initiative of the Development Academy of the Philippines (DAP) to promote and showcase outstanding and innovative practices demonstrated by the public sector organizations. It is one of the Academy's strategy responses to the rising call for public sector organizations to further enhance the quality of service delivery.

The GBPR annually recognizes successful and validated practices demonstrated by public sector organizations. Government institutions at all levels of governance and all fields of practices are invited every year to submit their institutions' best practice.

As one of the components of the Academy's Business Excellence Program, which also include the Philippine Quality Award (PQA) and the Government Excellence Class (GEC), the GBPR supplements and complements the Academy's efforts to improve organizational productivity and performance in the public sector by recognizing innovative best practices of government institutions and organizations.

The Academy has developed a set of criteria for evaluating remarkable government practices. Entries from government organizations are assessed based on these criteria to select the government institutions that will participate in the presentation and have the chance to be recognized for the year.

Best practices are the building blocks and the solution formula in the attainment of organizational outcomes – relevant policies, quality services and organizational effectiveness. Best practices are small victories that have produce big impact and significant change on how public sector organizations deliver the services, as they grow, mature and scale up over a period of time.

OBJECTIVES

The GBPR seeks to recognize successful and validated practices demonstrated by all public sector organizations. It provides a platform to showcase and promote best practices as a way to foster knowledge sharing and to contribute in sustaining performance results in the entire bureaucracy. Ultimately, this collaborative learning mechanism envisions improving the quality of service and competitiveness of government institutions.

The GBPR serves as a harmonizing strategy to attain the objective of the APO's designation to the Philippines, with DAP as the implementing arm, as the Center of Excellence on Public Sector Productivity (PSP), "to advance the public sector productivity movement" among APO member countries.

The GBPR complements the Public Sector Innovation Laboratory under the Government Quality Management Program (GQMP). Through the GBPR, public sector organizations will be able to capture innovative and transformative ideas, approaches and solutions which have been proven effective and helpful by other government agencies in improving the quality and impact of their respective services to the public.

Working closely with the Academy's Center of Excellence for Public Sector Productivity (COE-PSP), the GBPR fosters innovation and futures thinking in the public sector and widens access to quality by integrating the COE-PSP's knowledge management. GBPR is a direct resource of COE-PSP Knowledge Bank for content.

HOW TO IDENTIFY THE BEST PRACTICE?

Results-oriented

A best practice must have a clear and appropriate set of performance measures to determine the level of accomplishment/success. It must demonstrate an achievement of sustained and improving trend of results for the implementation of the practice. It must be able to establish its alignment to overall organizational objectives, strategies and outcomes backed up with a defined evaluation mechanism. Thus, the organization should have a way of monitoring, documenting and analyzing its performance including the benefits derived from the best practice.

Systematic and Data-driven

A best practice is an approach (technique, methodology/approach or process) that follows an organized step-by-step procedure, and is repeatable and transferable. It goes through a continuous cultivation and application of learning using data derived from evaluation or benchmarking activities and constantly seeks for improvement leading its way to practice maturity and institutionalization.

It is necessary that a best practice approach looks at relevance, consistency and quality in terms of delivering results. Organizations must keep an open mind to question the applicability and effectiveness of the practice to remain aligned with the changing circumstances.

Innovative

A best practice can be an "adoption of idea, process, technology, product or business/performance model that is either new or new to its proposed application" that creates a significant or 'breakthrough'/'cutting-edge' changes in output, outcome, process and organizational performance. Demonstrating innovativeness is not only limited to technological interventions.

Stakeholder-centered

Organization must ensure that the needs and requirements of all stakeholders or interested parties, internal or external, are considered in the development and implementation of the best practice. The levels of engagement of relevant stakeholders must be defined and meaningful in the practice as a form of managing better relationship with them. Their feedback must also be valued in such a way that it informs the cycles of improvement of the practice.
